Created in the early 1970s, this firm is specialised in repairing umbrellas, walking sticks and parasols.

It also sells a selection of new, quality items (most of which are made in France, notably by Vaux, Pigagnol or Guy de Jean) and distributes an item that has been designed and developed by the company's manager, the "Eiffel Tower" umbrella.

The workshop carries out all kinds of repair work, from fixing a simple stud on an ordinary umbrella to the full restoration of an antique umbrella of value, including re-making or replacing ribs, tips, notches, handles, etc. Even the shaft (in metal) or mast (in wood) can be repaired.

Repairing umbrella's is a rare profession; there are only ten such companies in France. Pep's possesses unique know-how.

Its customers are mostly individuals, but there are also some professionals and couture and luxury goods houses.
