Located just around the corner from the famous Place Vendôme, the Parisian diamond merchants Rubel & Ménasché supply high-quality diamonds to the major jewellery and watch Houses.

Founded in 1950, the company is a historic player in the diamond sector.

With a concern for meeting all their customers' needs and specificities, this diamond merchant supplies them with small, round stones, sorted and cut to order: baguette, square, princess, etc.

The cut and re-cut workshop possesses exceptional expertise and stands out by the number of cutters and their related services. The cutters – including one "Meilleur Ouvrier de France" (Best Craftsman in France) – are experienced and complementary, adapting their techniques and gestures to each stone. Re-cutting and direct adjustment (directly on a piece of fine jewellery) are their trademarks. The workshop can also repair all shapes and sizes, from 1 to 10 carats, and can improve quality.

Their integrated services and innovative industrial processes make this Parisian workshop one of the few capable of supplying diamonds of such fine quality, perfectly cut, in such a short time.
