The history of Maison Boinet starts with the story of a fashion and accessory enthusiast, Ernest Beaumert. In 1858, he began selling mother-of-pearl and ivory buttons in Château Renault. Maurice Boinet expanded the family business's production to belts and braces.

A love of quality and style, a selection of leathers and craftsmanship have been the driving force behind Maison Boinet since 1858. Its production methods reach a fine balance between tradition and modernity. Each leather is carefully selected and perfectly detailed before entering into production. Its tanners comply with ecological and environmental standards.

Today, while the methods and inspirations have changed, their excellence and demanding spirit are the same.

Maison Boinet is the symbol of luxury, with unique know-how that is the signature of "Made In France" quality.
