Established in 1919, Langlois Martin specialises in the creation of sequins for embroidery and braided fabrics.

It makes more than 5,000 models in 1 400 colours. The company has a unique collection of cutting and shaping matrices that it has gradually acquired since the start of the last century. Thanks to this collection, it can make all kinds of sequins: classic, cabochon and "fantasy" sequins. It perpetuates traditional and manual manufacturing processes such as stamping, drawing, preparing coloured varnishes, French polishing, applying iridescence and mother-of-pearl effect.

Langlois-Martin has carried out a number of orders for well-known Haute Couture and luxury ready-to-wear fashion houses. Its products are sold in France and abroad via a network of specific retailers, or directly to users.
