Located in Paris, Leonard Fashion has specialised in high-class ready-to-wear women's clothes ever since it was founded in 1958. Four collections of 150 designs are presented each year.

With over 5000 silk panels, 900 garments and 2000 designs, Leonard Fashion goes on creating new garments for women. The prototyping of these garments is carried out in house, and the company has preserved its expertise in garment cutting, taking into account the placing of the motif. This is a delicate operation, since the silk panel from which the garment is cut measures 1m30 x 1m30. On average, each garment requires two printed panels. A whole series of patternmakers, pattern designers, seamstresses and cutters are involved in the prototyping process. The company also makes accessories, including ties, handkerchiefs, jewellery, bags and perfumes. Its products are sold in France and overseas through Leonard Fashion stores and specialist luxury ready-to-wear womenswear stores.
