Fiva Créations makes synthetic crystal inclusions. It produces the material and casts the acrylic glass (PMMA, poly methyl methacrylate).

The company's rare, complex know-how lies in its mastery of many technical constraints (casting, machining, forming) linked to the use of acrylic glass and to the objects integrated or included (paper, plants, plastic, photos, even wood or iron supports).

The company transforms this material (mechanical and digital machining, laser engraving and cutting, digital printing and silk screen marking, folding, gluing, etc.).

It is well known for its customised production of trophies, tombstones, communication items, works of art, technical parts, displays, etc.).

It works for a prestigious clientele and some of its products are exhibited in foreign museums.
