Located in the heart of the French Jura Mountains, the historical birthplace of watchmaking, Pequignet is an authentic luxury brand that carries on the great watchmaking tradition at an independent French House that is attached to quality and the love of craftsmanship.

The watchmaking House has its own "Haute Horlogerie Laboratory", fully integrated into the company's headquarters in Morteau where they design, prototype, verify and assemble their own automatic mechanical movement: the Calibre Royal.

Pequignet offers two watch lines: a "Manufacture" collection equipped with the House's "Calibre Royal" mechanical movement, and another collection that embodies a certain expression of the "French Touch". br />

The factory carries out the work of a complete designer (assembling and adjusting the mechanisms) which comprises complex, age-old know-how in the watchmaking profession. It designs complex movements, produces prototypes, designs watchbands, cases and covers, and assembles and verifies all the components.
