For three generations and over 50 years, Bronze d'Art Français makes faithful reproductions of wall lamps, chandeliers, torches and lights from previous centuries, using time-honoured traditional skills which are continually updated by its staff of bronzesmiths and engravers, managed today by Catherine and Didier Pigeot. .

Bronze d'Art Français stands out in its field for its high-level bronzesmithing expertise. It carries out all production stages: sculpting, engraving, foundry casting, tapping, assembly, turning, polishing, gilding and patina. It also electrifies the light fittings.

In addition to its huge collection, the company has a design office available to interior designers and decorators, which enables it to reproduce or even come up with new designs based on a drawing or photograph.

The company works for heritage architects on prestigious sites, including the Basilica of Fourvière, Lyon Cathedral and the church of La-Tour-de-Salvagny.
