Founded in 1916, Waltersperger was the first glass craftsman to install semi-automatic machines, pushing the manufacture of glass and crystal ware into a new era. Today, the company embodies know-how and quality and is a reference in the glass-making tradition in the Bresle valley in Upper Normandy.

On the strength of its hundred-year experience as a glass-maker, Waltersperger can offer a global, high quality service: feasibility study, technical expertise, glass production and project management for the manufacture of bottles, carafes and other glass objects.

The company makes exceptional perfume bottles, giant imitations and limited series for prestigious brands such as Chanel, Guerlain, Givenchy, etc.; niche brands such as Annick Goutal and Frédéric Malle; and luxury carafes for liqueurs such as Frapin, Lhéraud, etc.

Its expertise, flexibility and human size makes it an essential player in the launch of new, luxury brands.
