Founded in 1921, Etablissements André Renaud manufactures high-end bags for major luxury brands.

A high-end leather goods manufacturer, it both develops new products (prototyping, new designs for fashion shows) and produces small and medium-sized runs of luxury items (often numbered).

Demonstrating a rare level of expertise, all production is undertaken in its Paris workshop, with no external outsourcing. It covers all the steps of production: from the study of designs and the production of cardboard templates and models to prototyping and production.

With a very high level of expertise, it uses complex techniques that draw on years of experience (saddle stitch, sewn-back, cutting and working exotic leathers, fur, positioning of embroidery, feathers, etc.) and involves impeccable finishing in keeping with the demands of the luxury houses for whom the André Renaud workshop works.

Products are made to order and the workshop is regularly involved in highly prestigious operations.
