The product of a takeover of one company in 2007 and a second in 2010, Menuisier et Compagnons specialises in general joinery, cabinet-making and fittings. It works mainly on the renovation of character buildings, where it endeavours to adapt the best contemporary techniques in keeping with the character of the traditional building.

The firm's expertise in the techniques of its trade leads it to work on the restoration of listed historic monuments.

Bespoke furniture-making is also a means of combining different materials to give free rein to the creator's expression.

The resulting sophisticated pieces are revealing of the traditional know-how of the craftsmen, some of whom have as much as 40 years' experience.

To take up a technical challenge is, to this company, the best way of progressing in the expression of its traditional know-how.
