A family-run SME with forty staff, the origins of Chaudesaigues date back to 1945. Brasswork was its mainstay from the beginning, and has been kept alive in the company, despite becoming an increasingly rare activity.

It is that expertise which enabled the firm to work with top luxury brands like Van Cleef & Arpels, and later with Chanel, Hermès, Cartier and Lancôme Paris.

The development of its skill areas to encompass joinery, a diverse range of metalwork, electricity, lacquerware and mirror making, has enabled it to best reconcile that expertise with the current demands of the luxury industry. br />

Its achievements include the Dolce & Gabbana central podium at Galeries Lafayette's Paris Haussman store, in October 2013, which won it a Gold Award at the POPAI Awards Paris; meticulous work on the Cartier POS display; and a partnership developed with Lancôme Paris for its new brand identity.
